- Remember that any personal information in an e-mail is potentially discloseable to the individual concerned. If the recipient finds the content offensive, I understand that it could result in legal action against me directly.
- 'Netiquette' should be observed on all occasions. E-mail should not be considered as a private method of communication and great care should always be taken over content because of the possibility of public scrutiny
- Do not reveal any personal information about yourself or anyone else, especially home addresses, personal telephone numbers, usernames or passwords. Remember that electronic mail is not guaranteed to be private.
- Consider the file size of an attachment, files exceeding 1MByte in size are generally considered to be excessively large and other methods to transfer such files should be considered.
- Only communicate with students and parents (or carers) using official school systems which can be monitored
- Immediately report any illegal, inappropriate or harmful material or incident of which you become aware to the Network Manager or Head Teacher.
- Do not download or open file attachments unless you are certain of both their content and origin. File attachments may contain viruses that may cause loss of data or damage to the School network.
- Never create or forward text which is offensive, abusive, libellous or designed to incite hatred against any ethnic, religious or other minority
- Never send any unsolicited promotional or advertising material nor any chain letters or pyramid selling schemes
- School will set clear guidelines about when pupil-staff communication via email is acceptable and staff will set clear boundaries for pupils on the out-of-school times when emails may be answered
- As part of the curriculum pupils are taught about safe and appropriate use of email. Pupils are informed that misuse of email will result in a loss of privileges.
- Be aware that responsible use of personal web mail accounts on school systems is permitted outside teaching hours
