

Year 9 Visit Tate Britain

The trip to Tate Britain was really fun and informative!

My friends and I got to see a lot of artwork and cultures through the artworks done by many different British artists. Mrs Jerome explained the importance of colours used during the impressionist movement and Mrs Appleby made us consider the composition of artwork done by woman part of the suffragettes. We realised that there were hidden messages in how they portrayed men as a distraction just by where the artist (Sylvia Pankhurst) placed them. We also had to sketch out some of the artwork with Mr Smith and mimic the styles of many artists Gwen John. We finished the day off with lunch and talked to the other groups and their experiences of Tate Britain.

The consensus was very positive and we will all like to go back sometime soon!
